Description One silver lining of the pandemic is that artists are feeling empowered to start up their own online galleries and shops. This informative session will explore some of the advantages and pitfalls of online businesses. Join us while we look at the options available to artists who want to strike out on their own using a variety of online platforms. Fine art attorney, Sarah Conley Odenkirk will introduce options and considerations for online businesses during this session. This one hour session will give you all the tools you need to get started.
