Galvanize & ignite your teaching this winter!

With all the changes happening in our society and education systems, it's time to bring our teaching back to our values. Get to the root of your inquiries with a deep investigation into your teaching practice, supported by a dynamic dance educator community.

Description: An advanced-level online course addressing the pedagogical underpinnings that support creative and conscious teaching – reflective practice, motivation, observation, documentation, assessment, advocacy, cognition, cultural-responsiveness/anti-bias work, and more. Use action research to investigate and align your teaching practice with your values. Through a seminar platform, collaborate and connect with your creative peers. Discover ways to rekindle the curiosity and artistry at the heart of your teaching. Coursework includes designing a semester-long action research project and investigating and making presentations on your specific areas of interest. Open to teaching artists of all disciplines.
